

CHAPTER 4

THE SET-UP

Zig's dad lifts the bot up.

Tob the Bot is big. Zig jumps up to help his dad.

“Grab the nuts and the rods from the bag and stick them in this spot,” his dad pants. “Quick! The bot must not drop.”

In a rush, Zig grabs the nuts and rods in the red sack and helps his dad lock in the bot's chest and legs.

The bot can stand up at last.

The next step is to stick the pins in the bot to clasp its belt, then its hands.

The belt has a red nub and lots of black nubs.

The clamps are the bot's hands.

The belt and the clamps are in with a click of a clip.

Then, Zig grabs the lamp and helps his dad fix it on its stand. Next, the lamp with the stand clips to the bot's top.

Zig skips to the next task, which is to set up the cam. That is a fast task! Zig twists the lens in the cam, and it pops in. Then, Zig snaps the cam on the bot's chest.

The last step is to set up the disc with the chip. This chip is the best bit of Tob the Bot. It helps the bot do tasks.

Zig's dad sets the disc in its slot in the bot's chest and fits the mesh lid on the disc. When the bot is on, this disc has a red flash.

With Zig's help, the tasks end fast. Tob the Bot is set to have fun.

Then, Zig prods the nubs on the belt.

When Zig flicks the red nub, the red flash on the disc flips on!

At last, Tob the Bot is ON!

Next, Zig clicks the black nub next to the red nub.

“This is Tob,” the bot chats. “Glad that we met!”

“Yes! Yes!” Zig blasts.
last.”

Zig straps his bag
on his back, grabs Tob's clamp hand, and sprints to his pal's.

In a rush, Zig does
to ask if Tob can rust
when it gets wet.
